Why do you want to become a member of this particular board or commission? I think I can offer an objective, balanced view.

Briefly explain what you believe are the three most important issues facing this board or commission, and how do you believe this board or commission should address each issue?

- 1) Investigate deadly force by use of police officer. The Board must remain objective and be willing to listen to all involved. The Board should be willing to conduct research, if possible. All Board members should be aware that incidents can be viewed differently by all involved.
- 2) Gain Community trust. Again, objectivity is a must. Willingness to be available as needed. Must be willing to possibly have to deal with some public "ontology".

3) Review decisions made by law enforcement officials in position of power. Hopefully, this would never happen but if some investigation were "stifled" must be willing to pursue.

Citizen Review Board Application for Eric B. Olsen, M.D.
Supplemental Answers

Why do you want to become a member of this particular Board or Commission?

I grew up in Fort Collins from elementary school through several years at CSU. Since our family moved here in 1972 I have seen many changes to our home community, yet I still believe that this is an excellent city that few can equal. The pride that I have in this community which has "molded" me, and now in turn will mold my children runs deep and my desire to foster improvement in our home has existed for quite a while.

I believe that the Citizen Review Board is the ideal opportunity for my community volunteer service and I believe that I make an excellent candidate for this board for several reasons. As a physician, particularly as an Emergency Physician at Poudre Valley Hospital, I have been, and continue to be privy to many of the situations which might trigger a review by this board. I am a daily witness to the interactions between law enforcement personnel and the citizens in their custody. Many times I have the opportunity to follow circumstances as they develop through radio and dispatch communications, paramedic reports, as well as through their evaluation in the Emergency Department. I believe that this has given me the advantage of being knowledgeable about what the officers are often up against in their charge to uphold the law. I don't believe that this "real time" insight is not always easily discernible through a retrospective review of a report.

In addition, my medical training and more so my clinical practice through out the years has given me cause to try to view each encounter as a different and unique situation without bias. A member of this review board must be able to put aside any personal bias in order to preform fair and accurate review. I also would be able to provide the board expertise in patterns of injury and injury recognition.

Briefly explain what you believe are the three most important issues facing this board or commission, and how do you believe this board or commission should address each issue?

1. In my opinion one of the most important issues will be decided through the application and selection process. This 5 member board must be composed of citizens who have as their primary agenda to be fair, considerate, honest and just in their call to serve. Each time that the Citizen Review Board is convened, all preconceived issues, notions and any other bias laden conceptions must be discharged prior to meeting so that fair and accurate consideration can be rendered.

Clearly, there exists potential for this board to be charged with significantly emotion-laden topics. As with many items which may be brought forward for review, there may be public activism, media attention or other opinion to which the members may be exposed. As members of the Citizen Review Board, such exposure bias must be eliminate so that a fair and appropriate review may be conducted.

Hopefully, through the scrutiny of Citizen Review Board applications, any persons who may intend to achieve personal gain or promote biased issues might be screened out from the list of viable candidates. Although many potentially agenda-bearing members, while they may believe that they act and debate with the best intentions of the board, may in fact have their consideration and responses tainted by their various bias. Also the board members may have to make unpopular decisions as a result of their review process. Those people on the board must be strong enough to overcome reaction to unpopular decisions so as to not be pressured by the "court of public opinion."

2. I view this board as being charged with a protection type of role. First and foremost is the protection of the citizens of Fort Collins against wrongdoing or perceived wrongdoing by any peace officer. However, in the same respects, an equally important role of the Citizen Review Board is that of protecting those members of our community who are charged with enforcing the law and the protection of people and property. Members of the board must be able to accept that their decisions regarding their work may elicit unpopular responses. Reactionary responses by people following an incident are not always appropriate responses. In that light it may often be the peace officers who need the protection that a Citizens Review Board review may provide after a complaint has been deemed not sustained or unfounded.

3. The "Use of Force" ability is an important right which citizens entrust to their peace officers and is certainly one of the central issues which has instigated the formation of the Citizen Review Board. The appropriate use of force, whether this be to physically restrain an individual or subdue and apprehend a person by non-lethal or lethal force is a capability that must be protected, yet not abused. The proper use of force or even the ability to threaten force can maintain credibility and respect that peace officers must have in order to maintain the law. Training in the appropriate use of force is required by any individual who is entrusted with its use. However, even the perception of improper use of force can be sufficient to tarnish the credibility of an officer or officers

In this light, the review of actions which require the use of force is likely the most important charge of the Citizen Review Board. Credibility and integrity by peace officers must be maintained by the proper and appropriate use of force, while the perception or actions of "bullying" and hassling must be eliminated. The Citizen Review Board must consider each instance with thorough and thoughtful fairness keeping in mind the best interests of the community.

1) The maintenance of a position of independence while fulfilling the

2) The development of credibility - with complainants and police and city council. Through reviews, avoidance of preconceptions, dealing with the facts, thoughtful and competent recommendations, all will contribute to obtaining credibility.

3) Do no harm. A citizen review board that manages it's functions

Why do you want to become a member of this particular board or commission? Police accountability is an important issue for the community. I would like the opportunity to help make this successful in Fort Collins.

Briefly explain what you believe are the three most important issues facing this board or commission, and how do you believe this board or commission should address each issue?

1) Looking out for the public. This is the main concern of the Civilian Review Board (CRB). The best way to accomplish this is to have members of the CRB who will act as champions for the members of the community who come before it, that is after determining that the case has merit.

2) Credibility. If the public is going to feel comfortable using the CRB, they need to believe in it. This means believing that the CRB will be able to listen to their complaint and fairly resolve it. They need to believe that the CRB will not just give them lip service, but will actually help them when they have a legitimate complaint. The CRB also needs credibility with the police department in order to effectively work with them in resolving complaints.

3) Actually being used. The CRB will fail if it is set up, but it is not used by people with legitimate complaints. The board members will need to make sure that the community is aware of the CRB and that it is actually being used. This will not happen until the first two needs, listed above, are met.
