CASE NUMBER: 2016CV31096

Poudre Fire Authority Administration is located in old town Fort Collins on the South East corner of Mountain Avenue and Remington Street. The street address is 102 Remington Street Fort Collins, CO 80524.

The Poudre Fire Authority (PFA) is a consolidated Fire/Rescue service agency serving the City of Fort Collins and the Poudre Valley Fire Protection District. Its 191 employees 35 volunteer firefighters and 6 volunteer mail carriers staff thirteen fire stations, a training center/warehouse/emergency management complex and administration facility that includes Headquarters and Community Safety Services divisions.

The PFA was organized in 1981 with the consolidation of the City of Fort Collins and Poudre Valley Fire Departments. The goal was to improve fire and rescue services by improving response times to emergencies, eliminate duplicate services thereby reducing costs to both the citizens of Fort Collins and the Poudre Valley Fire Protection District. At that time, both the city and district adopted an inter-governmental agreement establishing the authority. This contract outlines the governance, funding and operation of the authority. A five-person Board of Directors appointed by the Fort Collins City Council and Poudre Valley District Board governs PFA. Its members are two city council members, two district board members. The fifth member is chosen jointly by these four and has historically been the Fort Collins City Manager. The Board appoints Poudre Fire Authority's Fire Chief and is currently held by Chief Tom Demint.
