FORT COLLINS CITY COUNCIL

ITEM NUMBER: 16

DATE: April 15, 2003

STAFF: Jill Stilwell

SUBJECT:

First Reading of Ordinance No. 063, 2003, Appropriating Unanticipated Grant Revenue in the Cultural Services and Facilities Fund to be Used to Implement the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act.

RECOMMENDATION:

Staff recommends adoption of the Ordinance on First Reading.

FINANCIAL IMPACT:

The Fort Collins Museum has been awarded a $15,000 Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) repatriation grant from the federal National Park Service. This Ordinance appropriates the grant in the Cultural Services and Facilities Fund.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY:

In 1990, Congress established NAGPRA, Public Law 101-601. This law provides a process for determining the rights of lineal descendants of Indian tribes, Alaskan Natives, and Native Hawaiian organizations to certain human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony that are currently held in public Museums. The Fort Collins Museum is working towards compliance with the law. The Museum has completed initial physical inventory of its collections; sent out notification letters to over 600 tribal communities, Alaskan villages, and Hawaiian Natives; and consulted with over 15 plains Indian tribes to determine the repatriation process of four human remains held in the Museum's collection. As a result of the process, the human remains will be repatriated to the Cheyenne and Arapaho Tribes of Oklahoma and will be reinterred locally at Roselawn Cemetery.

The 2003 NAGPRA Repatriation grant will support the stipends and travel for tribal representatives and elders to come to Fort Collins for the repatriation and reinterment process. The Cheyenne and Arapaho Tribes have agreed to reinter the human remains locally at Roselawn cemetery. The grant also provides funds for a NAGPRA consultant to organize and manage the repatriation process. The reinterment is expected to take place in June 2003.
